About Clare

Clare is passionate about delivering musical education in a positive and supportive environment, developing all areas of violin playing including

- technique and posture
- rhythm
- aural skills
- musicianship
- effective practice strategies
- Preparation for AMEB exams

Clare has years of experience playing violin after beginning her journey at age 8. She studied at the University of Tasmania Conservatorium after being awarded a full scholarship and position in the Prelude Program, which allowed her to study violin at university while concurrently completing her final year at school. She studied under teachers Peter Tanfield, Edwin Paling and Lucy Carrig and was three times placed on the Deans Role of Excellence before graduating with her Bachelor of Music in 2011. She also holds a Diploma of Music Performance. Throughout her teenage years Clare was a regular participant in programs including AYO's National Music Camp and the University of Tasmania's AISOI.

Since moving to Melbourne Clare has focussed on teaching violinists of all ages and levels, working especially with young children and primary aged students. She currently teaches full time at her studio and within schools, as well as developing her own playing as a contemporary violinist.
